

Washington, Aug. 1.—Secretary of War Taft has accepted the invitation to address the Buckeye Republican club of Columbus, O., August 19.

The program included an historical address by Dr. C. J. Hexamer of Philadelphia.

What is good is never too abundant.
—Don Quixote.

turned to his home in Selma, Ala., at the close of the war and with characteristic energy immediately established a new firm, associating with him a number of his former clients and

Featherman & Sumberg

Don't Miss an Installment.
Order Your Paper Now.

The Daily Courier.

Entered as second-class matter at the postoffice, Connelleville.

THE DAILY COURIER, Publishers.
The Daily Courier,
The Sunday Courier,
The Weekly Courier.

H. F. SNYDER,
President and Managing Editor.
J. H. STIMMELL,
Secretary and Treasurer.

Office, The Courier Building, 127 1/2 Main St., Connelleville, Pa.

TELEPHONE RINGS.
News Department, and Composing Room: Bell 12—Ring 3.
Business Department, and Job Department: Bell 12—Ring 2.

SUBSCRIPTION.
DAILY, $1.00 per year; 12 per copy. SUNDAY, $2.00 per year; 20 per copy. WEEKLY, $1.50 per year; 15 per copy. Any irregularities or omissions in the delivery of The Courier to homes by the carriers in Connelleville or our agents in other towns should be reported to this office at once.

ADVERTISING.
THE DAILY COURIER has double the circulation of any other daily newspaper in Fayette county or the Connelleville section. It is better distributed for the general advertiser. It is the only paper that presents each week a new statement of circulation. THE SUNDAY COURIER is the seventh day for the daily edition. It speaks for itself. It is a big local paper with all the telegraphic news of the world and all the up-to-date features of Sunday journalism. The Daily and Sunday editions are published at the same time and place. The advertising department is located in the office of the paper. The circulation is approximately 35,000 weekly.

STATEMENT OF CIRCULATION.

STATE OF PENNSYLVANIA, COUNTY OF FAYETTE, SS:

Before me, the subscriber, a Notary Public within and for said county and State, personally appeared Jas. J. Driscoll, who being duly sworn according to law, did depose and say: That he is Circulation Manager of The Courier, a daily newspaper published in Connelleville, Pa., and that the number of papers printed and circulated during the week ending Saturday, July 27, 1907, was as follows:

Month.	Total.	D.A.V.
January	127,232	4,712
February	128,822	4,822
March	135,895	5,122
April	137,818	5,212
May	142,311	5,312
June	142,232	5,402
July	129,300	5,122
August	141,544	5,242
September	142,311	5,312
October	143,051	5,292
November	141,370	5,252
December	139,825	5,232
Total	1,601,355	5,100
January	141,422	5,122
February	141,100	5,122
March	140,582	5,021
April	147,229	5,062
May	142,810	5,022
June	140,138	5,012

And further sayeth not.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 27th day of July, 1907.

JAS. J. DRISCOLL, Notary Public.

ORLANDO H. PURDIN, Notary Public.

THURSDAY EVENING, AUGUST 1, 1907.

THE FUNERAL OF THE UNARTFUL DODGERS.

The Unartful Dodgers on the Hill are on the run and they are running pretty hard around the circulation track trying to escape publicity. They have systematically indulged in nothing but recrimination and invention, always shifting the burden of their sins and shortcomings upon The Courier. The following from The News is a fair sample of their duplicity:

The Courier burdens its readers with more wretchedness philosophy, gables some sentences taken from The News, printing those portions which can best be used in its misinformation act; unprofessionally refraining from using the entire editorial or showing signs of omission, and then calls The News an "Artful Dodger."

All who have followed closely the editorials of the two papers will readily recall that all the "bluffing" has been done by the paper from down Siney Alley. The News refrained in long while from burdening its readers with an argument about circulation, something which to a great extent does not concern them.

The bluffing, however, at last was called, and efforts on the part of the contemporary to squelch out will be given the consideration they deserve. Colorable facts and figures will tell the tale.

It is amusing to hear The News complain of our "unprofessional" conduct in not printing its editorial in its entirety. The News never did that for The Courier in its whole existence. We have frequently quoted our contemporaries and never garbled its utterances. It has seldom quoted us at all; it has never quoted us fully in any matter under controversy; and when representing our language in its own expressions it has never failed to misrepresent us, to set up a convenient man of straw. We presume this is the reason that the many who read both newspapers have come to have so little confidence in what The News says in its editorial columns.

As to the circulation matter under controversy, if it can be said to be under controversy, the facts are that The Courier has seldom or never called the matter into question save in answer to some insinuating or open claim on the part of The News that its circulation exceeded that of The Courier, or some shuffling double cross upon the circulation statements of The Courier printed week to week. Not content with deceiving its advertisers concerning its own circulation, The News volunteered to discredit the open statements made and sworn to week after week by the employees of The Courier office concerning our circulation. The Courier has hitherto refrained from attacking the circulation claims of The News, and has confined itself to challenging an investigation. That challenge was ignored until The News recently added, according to its own statement, 2,200 to its circulation with its professionally installed artificers. It then picked up enough courage to defy the challenge, evidently being under the mistaken impression that we were no more desirous of circulation investigation than them. In this they were woefully mistaken.

The News challenged us to appoint a committee of five Connelleville advertisers to make this investigation. That challenge was a bluff. We have called it. We have named the committee. It will set about its task immediately. Our office, our banks, our employees and agents will be offered for examination.

The News has tried to dodge, but it is cornered, and it now merely shrieks and squeals; but it will have to submit to the investigation of its circulation past and present or be discarded.

BOROUGH IMPROVEMENTS; WHO SHOULD BE HELPED.

The financial affairs of Connelleville are considerably involved because of the liberal expenditures of the late Democratic Reform Council. It is charged that a liberal percentage of this liberally-expended public money was diverted into private use, and that the methods of the State Capital grantees were copied on a similar scale, but nevertheless most laudable.

It is not our purpose at this time to discuss the causes, but the condition which confronts us. There is much to do in the way of public improvement, and much of it will require the available resources, and only such as are most pressing can be considered. In passing upon these the Town Council should exercise a sound discretion; and, if the members betray a broad and business-like disposition, they should be accorded the utmost consideration by the public.

It is natural for the citizens of each locality to imagine their needs are the most pressing, but they are not always entitled to first consideration. As a general proposition improvements that tend to the growth of the town are of first importance. One of these, we should say, is the request of the South Side portion recently taken into the borough for sewerage. Sewerage is the first step in town building. Modern sanitation and municipal civilization are founded upon it. It lies beneath all other improvements, and being the foundation it should be built first.

The offer of the South Side citizens whose properties are unsewered to advance the cost of the improvement is evidence of an earnest desire to help the borough in its present financial stress and to help themselves to better conditions at the same time. The offer is fair to liberality. It should receive prompt and favorable consideration at the hands of the Town Council. The latter, like the Lord, should try to help those who are willing to help themselves.

The labor union interests are now trying to convict Senator Borch, one of the counsel for the prosecution in the Haywood case, of being an "untrustworthy citizen." The Haywood union had better content themselves with the verdict which sets them free. The credit was hardly the South side of the "proof." It was, in effect, a verdict of "too poorly proven," or in other words, proven by a witness whose disreputable character supplied the jury with that reasonable doubt which must be resolved in favor of the defendant.

Mining accidents are no respecters of persons.

The Town Council was peaceful again.

The Town Council's files are too sticky. When a petition gets on them it seldom gets off. The files ought to be polished up and it wouldn't hurt to grease the joints of the committees occasionally.

Olympia overflowed yesterday.

The Tenth regiment Yells captured Mt. Pleasant yesterday, and it was a Pleasant victory.

The commercial traveler looked in vain for commerce in Connelleville yesterday.

The British Government may be maneuvered in favor of the strike.

The Shillists hold their conventions in London.

The individual car movement is getting coupled up at Cleveland today.

The Chief Mitchell remains in statu quo, but it doesn't seem to hurt him much.

The garbage furnace proposition was referred to the Public Safety Committee of the Town Council.

The Public Safety Committee is very much upon the garbage question. It also depends upon as much on sanitary sewerage as it does upon the garbage question. A petition should be referred to the Public Safety Committee.

Planting palaces now ply the Atlantic. The summer lots of people go to Europe.

Georgia will be on the Water Wagon after January 1st. It will be the biggest New Year ever known in the Crocker State.

The Pinkerton detectives are accused of making merchandise of justice. There is a vivid picture in the charge. The Pinkertons have undoubtedly done honest and excellent work in upholding the laws of the land and bringing crime to justice. Many good citizens of the country will apply the Missouri law and ask to be shown before convicting the Pinkertons of this charge.

Edward Wheeler Parker's appointment to the head of the Bureau of Mines was a just recognition by the Department of Commerce and Labor of Parker's long and able service. Parker has been in the bureau for a number of years and has proved his ability in every position. While he is to be congratulated upon his promotion, those interested in the future of the work of this department have reason to be quite as much in the appreciation of his services.

It has just been discovered in Connelleville that prohibition is a fiction.

Congressman Cassel was a bird of prey.

The New York strategists are endeavoring to get the World to publish a story about the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

Meyer's wife proposes to do her best to keep her husband from being a "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Hyde steam dump has been dumped, temporarily, at least.

We have read a great deal about the American massagers, but the only one we were always "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

The Unfortown papers also discuss the "dope" in the hands of an active and determined woman.

Lady Visitor—Do you ever make any sacrifices for your little sister?
Bobby—Yes, ma'am; I eat all the candy 'cause it makes her sick—Philadelphia Press.

Emptying the shelves.

When You Entertain.

You, of course, wish your arrangements to be just as pleasing and delightful as possible.

The Dumbbells Lunch Sets, table decorations, etc., are designed with this very object in view.

Then, too, we have dinner and score cards in different pleasing designs and many other requisites for successful entertaining.

Here Exclusively.
SAM F. HOOD
113 W. Main St., Connelleville, Pa.

Nettleton

Style, comfort and satisfaction is not to be had in all makes of $5 and $5.50 dress shoes. The man who is wearing a Nettleton has reason to be pleased with his footwear—he is wearing the best.

Parasols at One-Half Former price.

Children's Dresses One-Fourth Less.

Children's colored dresses, sizes 2 years to 6 years, dress as they suit at $2.50 and $3.00. Gingham, 1 yard and 1/2 yard. At this reduction they even look new.

Children's colored dresses, sizes 2 years to 6 years, dress as they suit at $2.50 and $3.00. Gingham, 1 yard and 1/2 yard. At this reduction they even look new.

Children's colored dresses, sizes 2 years to 6 years, dress as they suit at $2.50 and $3.00. Gingham, 1 yard and 1/2 yard. At this reduction they even look new.

Children's colored dresses, sizes 2 years to 6 years, dress as they suit at $2.50 and $3.00. Gingham, 1 yard and 1/2 yard. At this reduction they even look new.

Children's colored dresses, sizes 2 years to 6 years, dress as they suit at $2.50 and $3.00. Gingham, 1 yard and 1/2 yard. At this reduction they even look new.

Children's colored dresses, sizes 2 years to 6 years, dress as they suit at $2.50 and $3.00. Gingham, 1 yard and 1/2 yard. At this reduction they even look new.

Children's colored dresses, sizes 2 years to 6 years, dress as they suit at $2.50 and $3.00. Gingham, 1 yard and 1/2 yard. At this reduction they even look new.

Children's colored dresses, sizes 2 years to 6 years, dress as they suit at $2.50 and $3.00. Gingham, 1 yard and 1/2 yard. At this reduction they even look new.

Children's colored dresses, sizes 2 years to 6 years, dress as they suit at $2.50 and $3.00. Gingham, 1 yard and 1/2 yard. At this reduction they even look new.

Children's colored dresses, sizes 2 years to 6 years, dress as they suit at $2.50 and $3.00. Gingham, 1 yard and 1/2 yard. At this reduction they even look new.

Children's colored dresses, sizes 2 years to 6 years, dress as they suit at $2.50 and $3.00. Gingham, 1 yard and 1/2 yard. At this reduction they even look new.

Children's colored dresses, sizes 2 years to 6 years, dress as they suit at $2.50 and $3.00. Gingham, 1 yard and 1/2 yard. At this reduction they even look new.

Children's colored dresses, sizes 2 years to 6 years, dress as they suit at $2.50 and $3.00. Gingham, 1 yard and 1/2 yard. At this reduction they even look new.

Children's colored dresses, sizes 2 years to 6 years, dress as they suit at $2.50 and $3.00. Gingham, 1 yard and 1/2 yard. At this reduction they even look new.

Children's colored dresses, sizes 2 years to 6 years, dress as they suit at $2.50 and $3.00. Gingham, 1 yard and 1/2 yard. At this reduction they even look new.

Children's colored dresses, sizes 2 years to 6 years, dress as they suit at $2.50 and $3.00. Gingham, 1 yard and 1/2 yard. At this reduction they even look new.

Children's colored dresses, sizes 2 years to 6 years, dress as they suit at $2.50 and $3.00. Gingham, 1 yard and 1/2 yard. At this reduction they even look new.

Children's colored dresses, sizes 2 years to 6 years, dress as they suit at $2.50 and $3.00. Gingham, 1 yard and 1/2 yard. At this reduction they even look new.

DUNN'S CASH STORES.

129, 131, 133 N. Pittsburg St., Connelleville, Pa.

WEATHER FORECAST.

Western Pennsylvania - Thursday, partly cloudy, possibly local showers; Friday, fair, light west winds.

Emptying the shelves.

When You Entertain.

You, of course, wish your arrangements to be just as pleasing and delightful as possible.

The Dumbbells Lunch Sets, table decorations, etc., are designed with this very object in view.

Then, too, we have dinner and score cards in different pleasing designs and many other requisites for successful entertaining.

Here Exclusively.
SAM F. HOOD
113 W. Main St., Connelleville, Pa.

HOUSEKEEPERS ATTENTION

THE SMITH PREMIER TYPEWRITER CO

The Woman In the Alcove

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN,
Author of "The Millionaire Baby," "The Filigree Ball," "The House in the Mist," "The Amethyst Box," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1928, THE BOBBY-MERRILL COMPANY.

I drew a long breath—I think the inspector did. I had been almost rigid from excitement and I don't believe he was quite free from it either. But his voice was calmer than I expected when he finally said:

"I'll remember this. It was a good night's work." Then the inspector put to him some questions, which seemed to fix the fact that Sears had left the house before Sweetwater did, after which he bade him seek certain men to him and he went off.

I believe he had forgotten me. I had almost forgotten myself.

CHAPTER XV.

NOT until the inspector had given several orders was I again summoned into his presence. He smiled as our eyes met, but did not alight, any more than I did, to what had just passed. Nevertheless we understood each other.

When I was again seated he took up the conversation where we had left it.

"The description I was just about to read to you," he went on, "will you listen to it now?"

"Gladly," said I. "It is Wellgood's, I believe."

He did not answer save by a curious glance from under his brows, but, taking the paper again from his desk, went on reading:

"A man of fifty-five looking like one of sixty. Medium height, insignificant features, head bald save for a ring of scanty dark hair. No beard, a heavy nose, long mouth and sharp, half shut eyes capable of shooting strange glances. Nothing distinctive in face or figure save the depth of his wrinkles and a severely observable stoop in his right shoulder. Do you see Wellgood in that?" he suddenly asked.

"I have only the faintest recollection of his appearance," was my doubtful reply. "But the impression I get from this description is not exactly the one I received of that waiter in the momentary glimpse I got of him."

"So others have told me before," he remarked, looking very disappointed. "The description is of Sears given me by a man who knew him well, and if we could fit the description of the one to that of the other, we should have it easy. But the few persons who have seen Wellgood differ greatly in their remembrance of his features and even of his coloring. It is astonishing how superficially most people see a man, even when they are thrown into daily contact with him. Mr. Jones says the man's eyes are gray, his hair a wig and dark, his nose pudgy, and his face without much expression; his landlady, that his eyes are blue, his hair, whether wig or not, a dusty auburn, and his look quick and piercing—a look which always made her afraid. His nose she don't remember. Both agree, or rather, all agree, that he wore no beard. Sears did, but a beard can be easily taken off—and all of them declare that they would know him instantly if they saw him. And so the matter stands. Even you can give me no definite description—one, I mean, as satisfactory or unsatisfactory as this of Sears."

I shook my head. Like the others, I felt that I could know him if I saw him, but I could go no further than that. "There seemed to be so little that was distinctive about the man."

The inspector, hoping, perhaps, that all this would serve to rouse my memory, shrugged his shoulders and put the best face he could on the matter.

"Well, well," said he, "we shall have to be patient. A day may make all the difference possible in our outlook. If we can lay hands on either of these men—"

He seemed to realize he had said a word too much, for he instantly changed the subject by asking if I had succeeded in getting a sample of Miss Greer's writing. I was not free to say no; that everything had been carefully put away. "But I do not know what moment I may come upon it," I added. "I do not forget its importance in this investigation."

"Very good. Those lines handed up to Mrs. Fairbrother from the walk outside are the second most valuable clue we possess."

I did not ask him what the first was, I knew. It was the stiletto.

"Strange that no one has testified to that handwriting," I remarked.

"Fifty persons have sent in samples of writing which they think like it," he observed; "often of persons who never heard of the Fairbrothers. We have been bothered all over the city by the business. You know little of the difficulties the police labor under."

"I know too much," I sighed.

He smiled and patted me on the head.

"Go back to your patient," he said. "Forget every other duty but that of your calling until you get some definite word from me. I shall not keep you in suspense one minute longer than is absolutely necessary."

He had risen. I rose too. That I was not satisfied, I could not leave the room with my ideas (if I might say with my convictions) in such a turmoil.

"Inspector," said I, "you will think me very obstinate, but all you have told me about Sears, all I have heard about him in fact—this I emphasize—does not concern me of the entire faculty of my own suspicions. Indeed, I am afraid that, if anything, they are strengthened. This steward, who is a doubtful character, I acknowledge, may have had his reasons for wishing Mrs. Fairbrother's death, may even have had a hand in the matter, but what evidence have you to show that he, himself, entered the alcove, struck the blow or stole the diamond? I have listened eagerly for some such evidence, but I have listened in vain."

"I know," he murmured. "I know. But it will come, at least I think so. This should have reassured me, no doubt, and sent me away quiet and happy. But something—the tenacity of a deep conviction, possibly—kept me lingering before the inspector and thus gave me the chance to say:

"I know I ought not to speak another word; that I am putting myself at a disadvantage in doing so, but I cannot help it, Inspector. I cannot help it when I see you laying such stress upon the few indirect clues connecting the suspicious Sears with this crime, and ignoring the direct clues we have against one whom we need not name."

Had I gone too far? Had my presumption transgressed all bounds and would he show a very natural anger? No; he smiled instead, an enigmatical smile no doubt, which I found it difficult to understand, but yet a smile.

"You mean," he suggested, "that Sears' possible connection with the crime cannot eliminate Mr. Greer's very positive one. Nor can the fact that Wellgood's hand came in contact with Mr. Greer's at or near the time of the exchange of the false stone with the real make it any less evident who was the guilty author of this exchange?"

The inspector's hand was on the door knob, but he dropped it at this and, surveying me very quietly, said:

"I thought that a few days spent at the bedside of Miss Greer in the society of so renowned and cultured a gentleman as her father would disabuse you of these damaging suspicions."

"I don't wonder that you thought so," I burst out. "You would think so all the more if you knew how kind he can be and what solicitude he shows for me."

"In other words, this is what you think. The Englishman, desirous of covering up his tracks, converted the idea of buying this imitation on hand, in case it might be of use in the future, and disgraced himself by purchasing it for me. Recognizing his own inability to do this himself, he delegated the task to one who in some way, he had been led to think, cherished a secret grudge against his present employer—a man who had had some opportunity for seeing the stone and studying the setting. The very thing, however, Mr. Greer went to the ball, and relying on his own security in an unassuming position, attacked this fair brother in the alcove and would have carried off the diamond, if he had found it where he had hoped to find it, blinding on her breast. But he was not there. The warning received by her—a warning you ascribe to his daughter, a fact which is yet to be proved—had led her to rid herself of the jewel in the way Mr. Durand describes, and he found himself burdened with a false stone and with nothing to show for it. Later, however, he was interested in the stone and, possibly satisfied, he saw that diamond in my hands, and recognizing an opportunity, as he thought, of yet securing it, he asked to see it, held it for an instant, and then, making use of an almost incredible exploit for distracting attention, dropped the real stone and the false one, retaining the real one in his hand. This, in plain English, is what I mean. It is your present idea of the situation."

Astonished at the clearness with which he read my mind, I answered, "Yes, Inspector, that is what was in my mind."

"Good! Then it is just as well that it is out. Your mind is now free, and you can give it entirely to your duties." Then, as he laid his hand on the door knob, he added: "In studying so intently your own point of view, you seem to have forgotten that the last thing which Mr. Greer would be likely to do, under these circumstances, would be to call attention to the falsity of the gem upon whose similarity to the real stone he was depending. Not even his confidence in his own position, as an honest and highly respected guest, would lead him to do that."

"Not if he were a well known connoisseur," I faltered, "with the pride of one who has handled the best gems. He would know that the description would be soon discovered and that it would not do for him to fail to recognize it for what it was, when the truth became known to him."

"Perhaps, my dear child, to speak as a connoisseur as all the rest. It cannot stand putting him to a test. I will go further—you are a good girl and can bear to hear the truth from me. I don't believe in your theory; I don't. I have not been able to from the first, nor have any of my men; but if your ideas are true and Mr. Greer is involved in this matter, so will I, and that there has been more of a little about that diamond than you, in your simplicity, believe. If Mr. Greer were in actual possession of this valuable, he would show less care than you say he does. So would he if it were in Wellgood's hands with his consent and a good prospect of its coming to him in the near future. But it is in Wellgood's hands without his consent, or any near prospect of its regaining it, then we can easily understand his present apprehensions and the growing uneasiness he betrays."

"True," I murmured.

"If, then," the inspector pursued, giving me a parting glance not without me. But I think I should go back content if you will listen to one more suggestion I have to make. It is my last."

"Say it," I said nothing if not indulgent.

He had spoken the word. Indulgent that was it. He let me speak, probably had he not from the first, from pure kindness. He did not believe a little bit in my good sense or logic. But I was not to be deterred. I would empty my mind of the only thing that lay there. I would leave there no unobscured drops of doubt to ferment and work their evil way with me in the dead watches of the night which I had yet to face. So I took him at his word.

"I only want to ask this. I can see Sears is innocent of the crime, who wrote the warning and where did the assassin get the stiletto with the Greer arms chased into it? And the diamond? Still the diamond? You hint that he stole that too. That with some idea of its proving useful to him on this gala occasion, he had provided himself with an imitation stone, setting, and all—the whole was never shown to us as we have heard, any interest in Mrs. Fairbrother's diamond, only in Mrs. Fairbrother's hand. If I allowed Sears and Sweetwater to go, and let the false stone be exchanged for the real, then he made the exchange in Mr. Greer's interests and not his own. But I don't believe he had anything to do with it. I think everything goes to show that the exchange was made by Mr. Greer himself."

"A second point," I uttered, the inspector lightly. "Go on, little lawyer! But, for all this attempt at banter on my part, I imagined that I saw the beginning of a very natural anxiety to close the conversation. I therefore hastened with what I had yet to say, putting my words short and almost stumbling in my eagerness."

"Remember the perfection of that imitation stone, a copy so exact that it extends to the setting. The stone, plain—forgive me if I repeat myself—preparation, a knowledge of some, a particular knowledge of this one. Mr. Fairbrother's steward may have had the knowledge, but he would have been a fool to have used his knowledge to secure for himself a valuable. He could never have found a purchaser for it in any market. But a lancer—the man who has his pleasure in the mere possession of a unique and invaluable gem—ah, that is different! He might risk a crime. History tells us of such."

Here I paused to take breath, which gave the inspector a chance to say:

"In other words, this is what you think. The Englishman, desirous of covering up his tracks, converted the idea of buying this imitation on hand, in case it might be of use in the future, and disgraced himself by purchasing it for me. Recognizing his own inability to do this himself, he delegated the task to one who in some way, he had been led to think, cherished a secret grudge against his present employer—a man who had had some opportunity for seeing the stone and studying the setting. The very thing, however, Mr. Greer went to the ball, and relying on his own security in an unassuming position, attacked this fair brother in the alcove and would have carried off the diamond, if he had found it where he had hoped to find it, blinding on her breast. But he was not there. The warning received by her—a warning you ascribe to his daughter, a fact which is yet to be proved—had led her to rid herself of the jewel in the way Mr. Durand describes, and he found himself burdened with a false stone and with nothing to show for it. Later, however, he was interested in the stone and, possibly satisfied, he saw that diamond in my hands, and recognizing an opportunity, as he thought, of yet securing it, he asked to see it, held it for an instant, and then, making use of an almost incredible exploit for distracting attention, dropped the real stone and the false one, retaining the real one in his hand. This, in plain English, is what I mean. It is your present idea of the situation."

Astonished at the clearness with which he read my mind, I answered, "Yes, Inspector, that is what was in my mind."

"Good! Then it is just as well that it is out. Your mind is now free, and you can give it entirely to your duties." Then, as he laid his hand on the door knob, he added: "In studying so intently your own point of view, you seem to have forgotten that the last thing which Mr. Greer would be likely to do, under these circumstances, would be to call attention to the falsity of the gem upon whose similarity to the real stone he was depending. Not even his confidence in his own position, as an honest and highly respected guest, would lead him to do that."

"Not if he were a well known connoisseur," I faltered, "with the pride of one who has handled the best gems. He would know that the description would be soon discovered and that it would not do for him to fail to recognize it for what it was, when the truth became known to him."

"Perhaps, my dear child, to speak as a connoisseur as all the rest. It cannot stand putting him to a test. I will go further—you are a good girl and can bear to hear the truth from me. I don't believe in your theory; I don't. I have not been able to from the first, nor have any of my men; but if your ideas are true and Mr. Greer is involved in this matter, so will I, and that there has been more of a little about that diamond than you, in your simplicity, believe. If Mr. Greer were in actual possession of this valuable, he would show less care than you say he does. So would he if it were in Wellgood's hands with his consent and a good prospect of its coming to him in the near future. But it is in Wellgood's hands without his consent, or any near prospect of its regaining it, then we can easily understand his present apprehensions and the growing uneasiness he betrays."

"True," I murmured.

"If, then," the inspector pursued, giving me a parting glance not without me. But I think I should go back content if you will listen to one more suggestion I have to make. It is my last."

"Say it," I said nothing if not indulgent.

He had spoken the word. Indulgent that was it. He let me speak, probably had he not from the first, from pure kindness. He did not believe a little bit in my good sense or logic. But I was not to be deterred. I would empty my mind of the only thing that lay there. I would leave there no unobscured drops of doubt to ferment and work their evil way with me in the dead watches of the night which I had yet to face. So I took him at his word.

"I only want to ask this. I can see Sears is innocent of the crime, who wrote the warning and where did the assassin get the stiletto with the Greer arms chased into it? And the diamond? Still the diamond? You hint that he stole that too. That with some idea of its proving useful to him on this gala occasion, he had provided himself with an imitation stone, setting, and all—the whole was never shown to us as we have heard, any interest in Mrs. Fairbrother's diamond, only in Mrs. Fairbrother's hand. If I allowed Sears and Sweetwater to go, and let the false stone be exchanged for the real, then he made the exchange in Mr. Greer's interests and not his own. But I don't believe he had anything to do with it. I think everything goes to show that the exchange was made by Mr. Greer himself."

"A second point," I uttered, the inspector lightly. "Go on, little lawyer! But, for all this attempt at banter on my part, I imagined that I saw the beginning of a very natural anxiety to close the conversation. I therefore hastened with what I had yet to say, putting my words short and almost stumbling in my eagerness."

"Remember the perfection of that imitation stone, a copy so exact that it extends to the setting. The stone, plain—forgive me if I repeat myself—preparation, a knowledge of some, a particular knowledge of this one. Mr. Fairbrother's steward may have had the knowledge, but he would have been a fool to have used his knowledge to secure for himself a valuable. He could never have found a purchaser for it in any market. But a lancer—the man who has his pleasure in the mere possession of a unique and invaluable gem—ah, that is different! He might risk a crime. History tells us of such."

Here I paused to take breath, which gave the inspector a chance to say:

"In other words, this is what you think. The Englishman, desirous of covering up his tracks, converted the idea of buying this imitation on hand, in case it might be of use in the future, and disgraced himself by purchasing it for me. Recognizing his own inability to do this himself, he delegated the task to one who in some way, he had been led to think, cherished a secret grudge against his present employer—a man who had had some opportunity for seeing the stone and studying the setting. The very thing, however, Mr. Greer went to the ball, and relying on his own security in an unassuming position, attacked this fair brother in the alcove and would have carried off the diamond, if he had found it where he had hoped to find it, blinding on her breast. But he was not there. The warning received by her—a warning you ascribe to his daughter, a fact which is yet to be proved—had led her to rid herself of the jewel in the way Mr. Durand describes, and he found himself burdened with a false stone and with nothing to show for it. Later, however, he was interested in the stone and, possibly satisfied, he saw that diamond in my hands, and recognizing an opportunity, as he thought, of yet securing it, he asked to see it, held it for an instant, and then, making use of an almost incredible exploit for distracting attention, dropped the real stone and the false one, retaining the real one in his hand. This, in plain English, is what I mean. It is your present idea of the situation."

Astonished at the clearness with which he read my mind, I answered, "Yes, Inspector, that is what was in my mind."

"Good! Then it is just as well that it is out. Your mind is now free, and you can give it entirely to your duties." Then, as he laid his hand on the door knob, he added: "In studying so intently your own point of view, you seem to have forgotten that the last thing which Mr. Greer would be likely to do, under these circumstances, would be to call attention to the falsity of the gem upon whose similarity to the real stone he was depending. Not even his confidence in his own position, as an honest and highly respected guest, would lead him to do that."

"Not if he were a well known connoisseur," I faltered, "with the pride of one who has handled the best gems. He would know that the description would be soon discovered and that it would not do for him to fail to recognize it for what it was, when the truth became known to him."

"Perhaps, my dear child, to speak as a connoisseur as all the rest. It cannot stand putting him to a test. I will go further—you are a good girl and can bear to hear the truth from me. I don't believe in your theory; I don't. I have not been able to from the first, nor have any of my men; but if your ideas are true and Mr. Greer is involved in this matter, so will I, and that there has been more of a little about that diamond than you, in your simplicity, believe. If Mr. Greer were in actual possession of this valuable, he would show less care than you say he does. So would he if it were in Wellgood's hands with his consent and a good prospect of its coming to him in the near future. But it is in Wellgood's hands without his consent, or any near prospect of its regaining it, then we can easily understand his present apprehensions and the growing uneasiness he betrays."

"True," I murmured.

"If, then," the inspector pursued, giving me a parting glance not without me. But I think I should go back content if you will listen to one more suggestion I have to make. It is my last."

"Say it," I said nothing if not indulgent.

He had spoken the word. Indulgent that was it. He let me speak, probably had he not from the first, from pure kindness. He did not believe a little bit in my good sense or logic. But I was not to be deterred. I would empty my mind of the only thing that lay there. I would leave there no unobscured drops of doubt to ferment and work their evil way with me in the dead watches of the night which I had yet to face. So I took him at his word.

"I only want to ask this. I can see Sears is innocent of the crime, who wrote the warning and where did the assassin get the stiletto with the Greer arms chased into it? And the diamond? Still the diamond? You hint that he stole that too. That with some idea of its proving useful to him on this gala occasion, he had provided himself with an imitation stone, setting, and all—the whole was never shown to us as we have heard, any interest in Mrs. Fairbrother's diamond, only in Mrs. Fairbrother's hand. If I allowed Sears and Sweetwater to go, and let the false stone be exchanged for the real, then he made the exchange in Mr. Greer's interests and not his own. But I don't believe he had anything to do with it. I think everything goes to show that the exchange was made by Mr. Greer himself."

"A second point," I uttered, the inspector lightly. "Go on, little lawyer! But, for all this attempt at banter on my part, I imagined that I saw the beginning of a very natural anxiety to close the conversation. I therefore hastened with what I had yet to say, putting my words short and almost stumbling in my eagerness."

"Remember the perfection of that imitation stone, a copy so exact that it extends to the setting. The stone, plain—forgive me if I repeat myself—preparation, a knowledge of some, a particular knowledge of this one. Mr. Fairbrother's steward may have had the knowledge, but he would have been a fool to have used his knowledge to secure for himself a valuable. He could never have found a purchaser for it in any market. But a lancer—the man who has his pleasure in the mere possession of a unique and invaluable gem—ah, that is different! He might risk a crime. History tells us of such."

Here I paused to take breath, which gave the inspector a chance to say:

"In other words, this is what you think. The Englishman, desirous of covering up his tracks, converted the idea of buying this imitation on hand, in case it might be of use in the future, and disgraced himself by purchasing it for me. Recognizing his own inability to do this himself, he delegated the task to one who in some way, he had been led to think, cherished a secret grudge against his present employer—a man who had had some opportunity for seeing the stone and studying the setting. The very thing, however, Mr. Greer went to the ball, and relying on his own security in an unassuming position, attacked this fair brother in the alcove and would have carried off the diamond, if he had found it where he had hoped to find it, blinding on her breast. But he was not there. The warning received by her—a warning you ascribe to his daughter, a fact which is yet to be proved—had led her to rid herself of the jewel in the way Mr. Durand describes, and he found himself burdened with a false stone and with nothing to show for it. Later, however, he was interested in the stone and, possibly satisfied, he saw that diamond in my hands, and recognizing an opportunity, as he thought, of yet securing it, he asked to see it, held it for an instant, and then, making use of an almost incredible exploit for distracting attention, dropped the real stone and the false one, retaining the real one in his hand. This, in plain English, is what I mean. It is your present idea of the situation."

Astonished at the clearness with which he read my mind, I answered, "Yes, Inspector, that is what was in my mind."

"Good! Then it is just as well that it is out. Your mind is now free, and you can give it entirely to your duties." Then, as he laid his hand on the door knob, he added: "In studying so intently your own point of view, you seem to have forgotten that the last thing which Mr. Greer would be likely to do, under these circumstances, would be to call attention to the falsity of the gem upon whose similarity to the real stone he was depending. Not even his confidence in his own position, as an honest and highly respected guest, would lead him to do that."

"Not if he were a well known connoisseur," I faltered, "with the pride of one who has handled the best gems. He would know that the description would be soon discovered and that it would not do for him to fail to recognize it for what it was, when the truth became known to him."

"Perhaps, my dear child, to speak as a connoisseur as all the rest. It cannot stand putting him to a test. I will go further—you are a good girl and can bear to hear the truth from me. I don't believe in your theory; I don't. I have not been able to from the first, nor have any of my men; but if your ideas are true and Mr. Greer is involved in this matter, so will I, and that there has been more of a little about that diamond than you, in your simplicity, believe. If Mr. Greer were in actual possession of this valuable, he would show less care than you say he does. So would he if it were in Wellgood's hands with his consent and a good prospect of its coming to him in the near future. But it is in Wellgood's hands without his consent, or any near prospect of its regaining it, then we can easily understand his present apprehensions and the growing uneasiness he betrays."

"True," I murmured.

"If, then," the inspector pursued, giving me a parting glance not without me. But I think I should go back content if you will listen to one more suggestion I have to make. It is my last."

"Say it," I said nothing if not indulgent.

He had spoken the word. Indulgent that was it. He let me speak, probably had he not from the first, from pure kindness. He did not believe a little bit in my good sense or logic. But I was not to be deterred. I would empty my mind of the only thing that lay there. I would leave there no unobscured drops of doubt to ferment and work their evil way with me in the dead watches of the night which I had yet to face. So I took him at his word.

"I only want to ask this. I can see Sears is innocent of the crime, who wrote the warning and where did the assassin get the stiletto with the Greer arms chased into it? And the diamond? Still the diamond? You hint that he stole that too. That with some idea of its proving useful to him on this gala occasion, he had provided himself with an imitation stone, setting, and all—the whole was never shown to us as we have heard, any interest in Mrs. Fairbrother's diamond, only in Mrs. Fairbrother's hand. If I allowed Sears and Sweetwater to go, and let the false stone be exchanged for the real, then he made the exchange in Mr. Greer's interests and not his own. But I don't believe he had anything to do with it. I think everything goes to show that the exchange was made by Mr. Greer himself."

"A second point," I uttered, the inspector lightly. "Go on, little lawyer! But, for all this attempt at banter on my part, I imagined that I saw the beginning of a very natural anxiety to close the conversation. I therefore hastened with what I had yet to say, putting my words short and almost stumbling in my eagerness."

DR. GREWER

Medical and Surgical Institute, A. C.
Hagan Block, No. 28 East Main Street, Uniontown, Pa.

Dr. E. Grever, Consulting Physician and Surgeon.

Dr. E. Grever, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania and one of the leading specialists of this State, has been permanently located at the above address, where he treats all chronic diseases of Men, Women and Children. He makes a specialty of all forms of Nervous Diseases, Blood Poisons, Secret Diseases, Epileptic Fits, Convulsions, Hysteria, St. Vitus Dance, Wakefulness, Cured under guarantee.

Lost Manhood Restored.
Weakness of Young Men Cured, and All Private Diseases.

Varicose, Hydrone and Rupture promptly cured without pain and no detention from business.

He cures the worst cases of Nervous Prostration, Rheumatism, Sciatica, Old Sores, Blood Poisons, and all diseases of the Skin, Ear, Nose, Throat, Heart, Lungs, Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Bladder.

He will Forfeit the Sum of $5,000 for Any Case of FITS or EPILEPTIC CONVULSIONS That He Cannot Cure.

Consultation in English and German and strictly confidential. Write if you cannot call.

Office hours: From 9 A. M. to 6 P. M. On Sundays, from 9 to 12 only.

Today's Riddle

MEN WANTED.

No Man Over 45 Need Apply.

There are the men that are going to be the common thing in America. Conspicuous are getting more and more. They are no longer looking over 10 years older than he is.

A man with a few hair always does it. It is important, nowadays, that a man look as young as he is. It is a really important that a man have a fairly dependent upon him should take care of his hair.

It will have dandruff—get rid of it by killing the germs.

If your hair is falling out—stop it. If your hair is turning gray—don't waste any time.

There is one sure remedy that will cure these troubles, and and you to remain young.

Parisian Sage, the great French Hair Restorer, is guaranteed to permanently remove dandruff in two weeks, or your druggist will give you your money back.

Parisian Sage stops falling hair—it prevents the hair from turning gray. It is the best remedy for baldness. It makes hair thick, lustrous, and healthy, out and beautiful and is not sticky or greasy.

Parisian Sage is sold and rightly guaranteed by A. C. Clarke, Connellsville, Pa. Price 50 cents a bottle. If you do not live near a druggist who sells Parisian Sage, send us 50 cents—stamp or check, and we will send you a large bottle, charges prepaid. (Give our Mfg. Co., Buffalo, N. Y.)

A Discard Note.

"It's finished, and I've left the glass not inside"—Lustige Welt.

Clark's Thread NEW YORK RACKET STORE Clark's Thread

SPECIAL. 60 White Linen Skirts for ladies, made up in the latest patterns, regular price $1.50, while they last your choice, $1.25.

JUST RECEIVED. Another shipment of those large 20x24 mirrors, with heavy gilt and black ornamental frames. We again offer them at the old price, each $1.75.

Best oil color opaque Widow Shades, in dark green cloth best spring rollers, worth 30 cents each, while they last, each $25.

PATTERNS. Cut your clothes by a Peerless Pattern, the most up-to-date pattern made. All seams allowed. We have the full line to select from. 50, 100 and 150.

FREEZERS. The celebrated Frezzer Freezer. Will freeze cream in 15 minutes. 2-quart $1.75; 3-quart $1.99; 4-quart $2.19; 6-quart $2.25.

The Whitcomb Shoe. We offer the Whitcomb shoe for men, the only of any shoe made, in patent leather, box calf or gun metal, button lace or blucher $2.99.

BOTH LOVED IN VAIN.

That Explains Suicide of Miss Laura Matthews and Amos R. Rumbaugh.

JURY CLEARS DEAD MAN'S NAME

Former Member of Fighting Tenth Loved Girl Who Loved Chicago Millionaire Whose Attention Was Not Seriously Meant.

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 1.—All suspicion that Amos R. Rumbaugh of Mt. Pleasant, Pa., might have slain Miss Laura Matthews of Chicago has been removed through the verdict of a coroner's jury. The verdict reads: "We, the jury empaneled to inquire into the cause of death of Laura Matthews, find that she came to her death from gunshot wounds inflicted with suicidal intent."

An inquest was later held over Amos R. Rumbaugh, who shot himself through the head. The verdict was that he came to his death by his own hand. Suspicion for a time pointed to Rumbaugh as having caused the death of Miss Matthews, because of his apparent infatuation for the young woman and his failure to appear at the inquest as a witness.

Miss Tillie Green of Scottville, Mich., who was Miss Matthews' nurse and whose efforts had been held by the authorities pending developments, is declared in no way to blame for the young woman's act.

Coroner Richardson stated that in his opinion Miss Matthews killed herself because of infatuation for the girl Rumbaugh, died at St. Francis hospital without regaining consciousness. He had shot himself in his room at the Alta Vista hotel.

Rumbaugh Plans Marriage.

Miss Tillie Green, the nurse, at the Matthews inquest testified that Rumbaugh on Monday told her that he and Laura had been driving in a closed carriage on Friday and that after Laura had disclosed to him her relations with Coey, she suddenly drew a revolver and attempted to shoot herself. Rumbaugh wrested the pistol from her. Rumbaugh also told Miss Green that he and Miss Matthews had determined to get married and go abroad. Rumbaugh had engaged a section in a sleeping car for himself and Miss Matthews and they were to leave for New York on Monday.

The nurse said Rumbaugh was very much agitated when told of Miss Matthews' death and talked excitedly about going east and taking revenge on Coey.

Letters written by Coey to Miss Matthews were read to the jury. The letters indicate that Coey was deeply in love with Miss Matthews. They abound in professions of love. Such phrases as "I cannot get along without you," "I will live for you, if you live for me," and "Life is short, so why not be with one we love the most," are some of the phrases used. In nearly every letter Coey encouraged Miss Matthews to be "a good little girl" and come back to him with her health restored.

Says Girl Was Murdered. Chicago, Aug. 1.—A. Coey, who has been prominently mentioned in the developments following the suicide of Laura Matthews at Colorado Springs, held a conference with Mrs. Jennie Matthews, the mother of the girl. Both declared that the girl had been murdered. Coey declared that he had traced the telegram said to have been sent him by Miss Tillie Green, the nurse of Miss Matthews, and was satisfied that she did not send it. He further said: "I believe that Miss Matthews' death is a plain case of murder. In my opinion Rumbaugh committed the deed and sent a telegram calculated to put strong suspicion on me as being the cause of the girl's suicide. Rumbaugh was evidently afraid of losing the girl."

Mt. Pleasant, Pa., Aug. 1.—Amos R. Rumbaugh left here two weeks ago for Pittsburgh on his weekly trip to buy cattle for his business here. Until they heard from Colorado the family has been ignorant of what had become of him.

Rumbaugh Had Money. It is said that when Rumbaugh left Pittsburgh he had about $1,500 with him. Of this sum he took about $200 when leaving here and is said to have received the additional $1,300 from Pittsburgh people on a sale of hides. It is also said that his family relations were not pleasant, his marriage with a young woman from Ohio never having been blessed with children.

Scottsdale, Pa., Aug. 1.—Amos R. Rumbaugh, who shot himself at Colorado Springs, was well known here, being a member of the Eagles and other lodges in Scottsdale. His friends here know nothing about his connection with the suicide of Miss Matthews. Rumbaugh served in the Philadelphia campaign with the Tenth regiment.

Bishop Goes to Istomus. NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Joseph B. Bishop, the Bishop of the Isthmian Canal Commission, sailed for Panama today on the steamer Dunottar Castle. The transfer of the duties of the Secretary from Washington to the Canal Zone are in consonance with the plan of change in the administrative methods of the Commission's work announced recently.

Have you tried our waist column?

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Third Annual Encampment Is Being Held in Texas.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Aug. 1.—[Special.]—The third annual encampment of the Texas Epworth League opened at Epworth today, and in attendance will undoubtedly be the largest ever held by the organization in this State. A large number of campers arrived during the day and several hundred tents have been erected. The encampment is to continue 11 days. Prominent among the scheduled speakers are Bishop W. A. Candler, Dr. J. S. French of Atlanta, Ga., Bishop Joseph Key, Dr. E. D. Moulton of San Antonio, Dr. George W. Truett of Dallas, Rev. J. H. Moore of Houston, Bishop Seth Ward and Dr. S. H. Werlen of Austin.

NEW LAWYER.

Martin Littleton Has Been Selected to Defend Thaw at Second Hearing.

UNITED PRESS TELEGRAM. NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Martin Littleton, former Borough President of Brooklyn, has been selected as chief counsel for Harry K. Thaw in his next trial for the murder of Stanford K. White. The announcement was made by Dan O'Reilly, one of the attorneys in the former trial. A consultation of the family, including Mrs. William Thaw, mother of Harry, Evelyn, the prisoner's wife, was held at the Tumbas, after which the announcement was made. It is understood Littleton, in succeeding Holmes, has made the condition that he will be given full charge, and will brook no interference. It is hinted that the retainer fee is $25,000. Littleton nominated Judge Alton B. Parker for President at the St. Louis convention.

SWALLOWED A TAG.

Accident to Fairchance Infant May Have Serious Result.

UNIONTOWN, Aug. 1.—While playing with the tag from a piece of chewing tobacco, the 18 months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Shambaugh of Fairchance, swallowed it. The tag had been taken away from him once, but he got hold of it again. Mrs. Shambaugh became alarmed and summoned Dr. Hibbs. Efforts to dislodge the tag from the boy's anatomy were fruitless.

DOCTORS MUST REPORT.

Health Officer Hyatt Calls Their Attention to the Law.

Health Officer Allen Hyatt is strong after the doctors who have failed to comply with the rules of the State Health Board. In a circular he calls attention to the laws governing the report of contagious diseases and the special forms upon which they shall be reported. In the circular he gives the list of diseases that shall be reported under penalty of arrest and fine.

ANOTHER DIVORCE.

Connellsville Man Asks Legal Separation from His Wife.

UNIONTOWN, Aug. 1.—The latest divorce to be filed in this county is that of James L. Curry of Connellsville, who seeks separation from Annie P. Curry. They were married in Connellsville October 24, 1900, and kept house here.

She is alleged to have deserted May 27, 1905, and has since refused to return.

KOREANS KILLED.

Disarmament by Japanese Results in Battle and Bloodshed.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Disarmament of the Korean army by the Japanese provoked hostilities, fighting following today. Forty Koreans were killed or wounded. The casualties were slight among the Japs.

Harry Boyd's Funeral.

The funeral of the late Harry P. Boyd took place from his late residence on Eighth street, Greenwood, this afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. E. A. B. Palmquist, pastor of the First Baptist church, officiated. The floral tributes were many and handsome and the services were attended by many friends and relatives of the deceased.

Card of Thanks.

I wish to thank the Burgess, policeman and other officials at Uniontown, the many friends, the physicians and the Superintendent at the Cottage State Hospital and all others who were so kind and attentive during the illness of my husband, who returned from the hospital Wednesday, July 31. Mrs. A. J. Dorna.

Ohio Barbers' Scheme.

BELLEVILLE, O., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—In accordance with a mutual agreement reached some time ago the barbers of this city today raised the price of shaves to 15 cents. In order to prevent patrons from shaving themselves the barbers have decided to increase the price for having razors from 25 cents to 50 cents.

Two Men Killed.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 1.—[Special.]—A freight train crushed two men, laborers, to death today. The men are employed at the Edgar Thompson steel works.

Troops Wound Many.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Troops in quelling the riots at Lodez today fired on the mob killing and wounding 30 persons.

FISHERMAN'S ODD CATCH.

Maine Man Said to Have Taken a Beaver With Fly.

While W. E. Dill of Basile, Me., was fly fishing on the Dead river near Ledge Falls, Me., he noticed a young beaver suddenly come to the surface of the water within fifty feet of where he was casting from a rock in the stream. Not having had many rises that day and being ready for any diversion from the monotony of the constant casting and only occasional strike, in pure sportiveness he decided to try his skill in tempting the beaver to taste his white miller, says a Bangor (Me.) special dispatch to the Chicago Inter Ocean.

Making one of the best casts he had ever made, the fly dropped just in front of the inattentive animal within two feet of his jaws. By the careful maneuvering of the leader and a quick jig at the right moment the beaver was soon firmly grasping the white fly.

When completely fired out by his struggles of twenty minutes, the beaver consented to be captured and after exhibiting him at the Shaw House for a few hours, Mr. Dill carefully returned him to his native home. He did not seem to be very wild and would not offer to bite, as some of the women and children held him in their arms. Mr. Dill thinks he is the only man who ever landed a beaver on a split bamboo fly rod. Any one at Basile will vouch for this.

BANKER KILLED.

Head Struck a Rock While Diving in Lake.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1.—[Special.]—President Edmund Watson of the Northern National Bank was instantly killed today while swimming in a pool at the Columbia Club, this city's prominent social organization. In diving his foot slipped and his head struck against the concrete side of the tank. The superintendent of the club refused information, and a report was current that Watson had committed suicide.

SUICIDE EPIDEMIC.

Allegheny County Records Show List of Twenty-Two.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 1.—[Special.]—The report for the past month of the Allegheny county coroner shows a suicide epidemic. There were 22 cases of self-destruction. The majority of cases were from despondency. Sixteen people were killed in the various mills of the county. The railroads were responsible for 25 deaths. There were 212 inquests held the past month.

MAY START BANK.

Bank President Buys Building of Defunct Institution.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Chas. E. Matthews, President of the National Bank of Lawrence County, today at public auction purchased the bank building of the bankrupt New Castle Savings & Trust Company.

Matthews refuses to say his intention, but it is believed he will start another bank there.

FORMAL INQUEST.

Into Jones & Laughlin Disaster Set for August 7.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 1.—[Special.]—The formal inquest into the Jones & Laughlin disaster May 21, at which five men were killed by an explosion at Eliza Furnace, will be held August 7.

Eugene Mesler, General Superintendent, and William Smith, Master Mechanic, are among those notified to be present.

CASE IS SETTLED.

Prosecution Against Officer Stull the Result of Misunderstanding.

The prosecution against Officer Geo. Stull of Dunbar for embezzlement was settled at the hearing before Judge W. P. Clark this morning. A Manzo, an Italian, was the prosecutor.

Sunday School Picnic.

The annual outing of the Methodist Episcopal Sunday School will be held at Sandy Grove Park, Friday, August 9. Extensive arrangements are being made by the committee in charge and a most enjoyable day is anticipated. Various amusements are being arranged for the occasion.

Card of Thanks.

The relatives of the late Mrs. Mary Leggett of Cleveland, O., desire to extend a vote of thanks to their many friends who so kindly assisted them during their recent bereavement and also to the members of the Trinity Lutheran Church choir who sang at the services.

Hold Exchange.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Christian Church will hold an exchange in the choir vestibule of the church Saturday morning beginning at 8:30 o'clock. Miss Nellie Edwards, assisted by a committee will have charge on Saturday.

A Great Big Boy.

Mr. and Mrs. John Clark of North Pittsburgh street are the proud parents of a 13 pound baby boy. John's liberality is displaying itself among his friends today by the distribution of cigars and other things.

Doek Men Quit.

ELIZABETH, Pa., Aug. 1.—[Special.]—Half of the force of carpenters on the docks here quit today demanding an eight hour day. There was no trouble.

Local and Personal Mention.

Mrs. J. B. Barr of Bellevue is visiting her mother, Mrs. Charles McCormick, York, Pa. She is accompanied by Dr. S. D. W. Barr & Son, Dentists, First National Bank Building, Tri-State phone 186. Crown and bridge work a specialty.

R. W. Lebigor returned home last night from a two weeks' vacation at Philadelphia and Atlantic City. While in Philadelphia he took in the annual convention of the I.O.O.F.

Get a copy of The Sunday Courier. Mrs. June Grier of Johnston avenue went to Ohio yesterday afternoon to visit her daughter, Mrs. J. L. Randall, who is spending the summer at her country home.

Schell's have an oven for your hot place. Mrs. J. Allison Walker of Nevada was in town yesterday on her way to Mill Run to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. August Schell.

Miss Zora Schell came out up in a collapsible tube with a nozzle. Ready to apply right where the soreness and inflammation existed. It relieved at once blind bleeding, itching or protruding piles. Guaranteed. Sold by Graham & Co.

Mrs. J. W. Shank of Ohio is here on a visit to friends and relatives. John Kopfert of the Young House went to Canton yesterday afternoon for several days.

Everybody's favorite, Gold Coin Flour. It is the best of North Pittsburgh and is sold in all the best flour stores. It is made by the best millers in the world.

Get your garden hose at Schell's. Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Jarrett of Scottsdale were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Dorey of West Beach street yesterday afternoon.

Black Little Liver Pills keep the system clean, the stomach sweet. Pimples, eruptions, headache and biliousness. Good for all the family. Sold by Graham & Co.

Prof. and Mrs. H. S. Stangland arrived here last evening from New Philadelphia, O., where they have been the guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dorey.

Have you tried Gold Coin Flour? Mrs. Frank Cunningham and children of the South side went to Pittsburgh this morning, where they will be the guests of relatives for several days.

Scott Hardware Company has a fine line of kitchen necessities. Miss Abbie Hickney of Uniontown has returned home after a few days' visit with relatives here.

S. B. White, the enterprising upholsterer and furniture repair man of West avenue will make shipment of mirrors to the residents of all the best hotels, Tri-State phone 301.

Miss Beulah Hulse chief operator for the Bell Telephone Company, left today morning for West Chester, where she will visit Mrs. Charles Miller for several days. Mrs. Miller was formerly an operator for in the local exchange.

Wm. H. Hulse, who is now in charge of the Beech Lake Lumber Company, contains honey and for that no opinion. C. H. Hulse, Jr., is now in charge of the Beech Lake Lumber Company. Keep it on the ground and you will be successful.

Edward Howard, colored son of Holden and Fannie Howard, died at an early hour this morning at his late residence at West avenue, the age 22 days. Funeral from the family residence tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in Hill Grove Cemetery.

Miss Mary Miller, the best flour in the world. Mrs. M. H. Miller of No. 1 Haven went to Pittsburgh, Md., this morning, where she will be the guest of relatives for several days.

Joe Graham, former Schell Hardware Company. Miss Abbie A. McElhenny of Scottsdale was in town this morning on her way East.

Remedies are for the kidneys and bladder. They bring quick relief to backache, rheumatism, numbness, tired feeling, urinary troubles, prostatic enlargement, etc. A 30-day treatment $1.00. Money refunded if not satisfied. Sold by Graham & Co.

Mrs. Robert Flinch of Johnston avenue is the guest of her sister, Mrs. William Knight at Philadelphia today.

Miss Sarah McElhenny, stenographer for Attorney Hulse & Brown, resumed her duties this morning after a month's vacation spent in West Virginia and at Hot Springs, Pa.

For satisfactory results, Gold Coin Flour. Mrs. Grace Rhodes of the South Side was the guest of relatives here last evening.

To Schell's for flour. Mrs. J. B. Miller of Scottsdale is the guest of Miss Maryanna Schell at North Pittsburgh street.

Gold coin, Gold coin flour. Miss Nellie Workman of Youngwood is the guest of relatives here.

Rev. and Mrs. A. A. Asher are spending several days vacation at Ridgeview.

The bites and stings of insects, sunburn, cuts, burns and bruises relieved at once with "Universal Carbolic Acid" or a poultice. Draws out inflammation. Try it. Price 25c. Sold by Graham & Co.

Mrs. Earl Hulse of Scottsdale is the guest of her mother, Mrs. Beathwaite of Hookdale.

A household necessity, Gold Coin Flour. Mrs. Ralph Bell Long and baby of New Haven, Mrs. E. L. Somers and two children and Miss Margaret Herple went to the Fernhill Hotel at Ohio yesterday morning, where they will stay for several weeks.

Don't drink mud. Get a filter at Schell's.

Mrs. Harry Williams of Dunbar was shopping in town this morning.

SOCIAL UNION

Of the Baptist Church Will Meet This Evening.

The regular monthly meeting of the Social Union of the First Baptist Church will be held this evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Sherrick, No. 220 East Fairview avenue. The program committee have arranged an evening with Whittier.

Papers will be read and selections will be read from the Quaker poet. There will also be a musical program. A cordial invitation is extended to all members of the church and congregation to be present.

No August Meeting.

There will be no August meeting of the C. W. D. M. Auxiliary of the Christian Church. The next meeting of the Auxiliary will be held on the first Thursday in September at the home of Mrs. M. T. Norton at East Connellsville.

Lost Is Found.

John McGill of Ourcrop, who left home June 22 to look for work and was not heard from, has returned home.

Our Daily Bulletin

CONNELLSVILLE PUBLISHED EVERY EVENING — TELLS TOMORROWS NEWS UNIONTOWN

Our Regular August Clearance Sale of Fine Shirt Waists Begins Tomorrow.

Every Shirt Waist in Our Stocks Priced Between $7.50 and $20.00 at Nearly Half Price.

Women will especially appreciate the business policy that prompts the reduction of this superb collection of women's waists, when they realize that through it they are enabled to acquire at the lowest of prices the daintiest of waists, tastefully trimmed, among which are waists suitable for any occasion. No occasion that has transpired in months offers the woman who wants the better sort of shirt waists such an opportunity to buy them and to save money by the transaction as does this August sale. It involves every remaining waist in our stocks that formerly retailed between $7.50 and $20.00. Below are the savings:

All $7.50 Lingerie Waists at.....$4.50
All $8.50 Lingerie Waists at.....$5.50
All $10.00 Lingerie Waists at.....$8.50
All $12.50 Lingerie Waists at.....$9.00
All $16.50 Lingerie Waists at.....$11.50

All $15.00 Chiffon Waists at.....$10.00
All $20.00 Lingerie Waists at.....$15.00
All $8.00 All-Over Lace Waists at $5.00
All $10.00 All-Over Lace Waists at $7.00
All $12.00 All-Over Lace Waists at $9.00

Wright-Metzler Co.

Even in Cuffs.

Customer—I find the reversible cut's give me better service, so I stick to them. Salesman—That's right. One good turn deserves another.—Philadelphia Press.

Hard Luck.

Too Much Sunshine.

Photographer—Not quite so much sunshine, please, or you'll fog the plate.

Wallace Furniture Company.

PARLOR SUITS, ODD PIECES, FANCY ROCKERS, CHAMBER SUITS, CHIFFONNIERS, DRESSING TABLES, METAL BEDS, BEDDING, DINING CHAIRS, SIDEBOARDS, EXTENSION TABLES, CHINA CLOSETS, BUFFETS, SERVING TABLES, EASY CHAIRS, COUCHES, LIBRARY TABLES, SECTIONAL BOOKCASES, WRITING DESKS, CARPET, CHINA AND JAPAN MATTING, RUGS, LINOLEUM, OIL CLOTH, LACE CURTAINS, DRAPERIES, WINDOW SHADES, FIXTURES.

The store that enjoys the confidence of the people.

The store that maintains its standard of excellent quality goods.

The store that believes in treating its patrons squarely.

The store that keeps abreast of furniture fashions.

The store that has a large following of satisfied customers.

The store that appreciates the patronage of its friends.

The store that keeps within the bounds of reasonable prices.

The store that shows exclusive styles in dependable goods.

Wallace Furniture Company.

For Women's Fine Garments

Suits, skirts, shirt waists—starched garments of all kinds—that fairly beam with snow, beauty and freshness, will be the rule, rather than the exception, if they are starched with the genuine

KINGSFORD'S OSWEGO Silver Gloss Starch

No starch ever has a better result than this for clarity and fineness of finish. Garments starched with it keep their shape longer, are more pliable, and have a newer and cleaner appearance than with any other. Can't injure goods; goes farther because of superior strength; hence most economical. Doesn't stick to the iron. The standard of quality for over half a century.

BEST FOR ALL KINDS OF STARCHING

For general use, as directed. For light starching, use a cold water starch, requiring no boiling. Made for over fifty years at Oswego, N. Y. in full-weight packages.

T. KINGSFORD & SON, OSWEGO, N. Y. NATIONAL STARCH COMPANY, SUCCESSORS.

TRY OUR WANT COLUMN—ONE CENT A WORD